AUTHOR BIO (LONG) - 250 Words

Cole Pierce survived twelve years of stalking and psychological warfare by a self-help industry predator.

It began in 2014 after he attended a seminar and impressed a self-help guru with extraordinary gifts. Pierce gave him over $100 million in ideas. Instead of gratitude, he got surveillance. His home began clicking, fifty times a day from eight locations in his bedroom alone. Hidden cameras. Hacked devices. His most private moments watched, recorded, and mocked.

When Pierce confronted the man responsible, the admission was chilling: he told his staff to "mess with me to make me unsuccessful." Then he mocked Pierce's love life, proving he'd watched everything. His last words: "You're not going anywhere."

Twelve years later, Pierce is still being stalked. He's moved ten times trying to escape. The surveillance follows everywhere. Even in Costa Rica for three months. He has 247 videos of evidence, recordings of thirty clicks in thirty minutes, and proof of man-in-the-middle attacks requiring on-site devices.

But he's never held a physical bug in his hand. The one he found retracted into his walls and vanished. Without a device for prosecutors, criminal charges are impossible. His stalker's lawyers bury every legal attempt. Law enforcement tells him to seek psychiatric help.

Pierce holds nine certifications in Neuro-Linguistic Programming and transformation coaching. He once help transform a homeless alcoholic. Who now lives in a lake side condo, makes more money than he ever did before, and is driving for the first time in twenty years. He hoped these skills he once would help others, and skills that ultimately helped him recognize psychological programming being used against him.

THE STALKER'S PROTOCOL is his first book. He wrote it as a desperate act: the only weapon he has left to fight a multimillionaire stalker with the truth. He lives in Lewiston, Maine, where he continues to document the surveillance and helps others who have experienced narcissistic abuse.
